

$10,000 ACCEPTED IN HEIMAN BROS. DEATH CLAIMS

Nicholas Heiman of Mokena, as administrator in the estates of his two sons who were killed in an auto-motorcycle accident in August, was given permission by Probate Judge Fred R. Adams to accept $10,000 as settlement of their claims.

Earl S. Folk, Mokena, Ill., is the defendant in the case who will pay the settlement. The terms are that $5,000 is to be paid for the death of Raymond Heiman of New Lenox, and $4,500 for the death of his brother Nicholas G. Heiman of Mokena. $100 is to be paid for damages to Raymond's motorcycle, and $250 for Nicholas' motorcycle. Raymond's wife, Elizabeth of New Lenox, is to receive $150 for injuries which she received in the accident.

Beside his widow, Raymond's heirs-at-law are his three children, Theresa A., Patricia Ann and Raymond T. Nicholas' heirs are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Heiman, a sister, Mrs. George Rinko, two brothers, Richard and Alfred and two nieces and a nephew, children of Raymond.

Attorney Matthew W. Stefanich was counsel for the Heimans.

The fatal accident occurred on route 66, about two miles northeast of Dwight as the Heimans were returning from the state fair at Springfield, last August 22.

Both young men were riding motorcycles, and Raymond's wife was riding with him. As Folk made a left turn off of route 66, his car collided with Nicholas' motorcycle, throwing him back into Raymond's motorcycle. The latter was killed instantly, and Nicholas died three days later in the Veterans' hospital at Dwight.

The new tractor known as the Model Z is the one with sufficient power for use generally with two or three bottom plows. One of these new tractors will be on display at Swanberg Farm & Auto Service.

This new tractor is said to have 10 per cent more power than the former model, a new appearance, larger rear tires, and many new engineering refinements. Uni-Matic Power for hydraulic control of mounted and pull-behind implements, available as optional equipment, is also one of its outstanding new features.

Four different types of this model featuring different front-end styles will be manufactured by the company. These are the ZAU or the universal type with two front wheels built close together; the ZAN with a single front wheel for narrow row crops; the ZAE with adjustable front-end axle for extension of the tread from 56 to 84 inches; and the ZAS with a front wheel tread of 48 inches and a rear wheel tread of 54 inches.

In addition to its increased power and new appearance, the new tractor is said to feature such improvements as the following: larger rear tires; forward speeds of 2.4, 3.6, 4.6, 6.3, 13.1, and a reverse 2.2 mph; power steering wheel which is easier to operate and is adjustable for height; an engine with greater piston displacement, with high turbulence and high compression combustion chambers, and with a three-bearing crankshaft.

Numerous tests of this tractor were held under various conditions, and officials and engineers of the company expressed themselves as elated over its performance.

Former Mokena Girl Airline Stewardess For China Evacuation

A former Mokena girl has achieved distinction, inasmuch that she has been chosen one of 20 stewardesses for special training for overseas flights. She is Miss Mariys Kropp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Kropp, now of Cable, Wis.

Miss Kropp, 23, who was born in Mokena, attended our public schools and was about nine years old when she moved with her parents to Cable. After graduating from the high school there, she returned to Mokena for a short time and worked in a Chicago office. She returned to Cable again and took up training as an airplane stewardess, and has been flying for several years through the northwest. She has always desired to fly the plane going to China, and is pleased that she was chosen by the Northwest Airlines for the special training for the overseas emergency evacuation flights from China.

Miss Kropp, according to a letter received by Mrs. Edward Yunker from her mother, is now in Anchorage, Alaska, where she is receiving "sho-s" and vaccination for the flights.

The Ashland (Wis.) Daily Press of November 24 published an article about Miss Kropp and her anticipated China flights.

BARN DANCE TO BE REPEATED

On Saturday night, December 4, Tinley Park was again the scene of activities reminiscent of the early days of the village.

The barn dance and hard times party, sponsored by the Tinley Park Civic club, was well attended by guests from New Lenox, Mokena, Peotone, Chicago and many northern points. The costumes, ranging from patched and battered old times, jeans and sloppy Joes to colorful western garb, lent an atmosphere in keeping with the affair.

Orchestra and guest participation ran so high that individuals were called from the floor to render solo or harmony numbers. One of those was Mrs. Mary Weslowski whose vocal talents are familiar to residents of Tinley Park.

Enjoyment by all was so complete that by popular demand a return engagement was booked with Blanche Brown's orchestra and Jim Lackey, caller, for Jan. 22 in Saenger Hall.

Many people asked for more time on the Civic Club Emblem contest so the deadline has been extended to December 22. All contestants are requested to mail their entries by this last and final date.

Beverly Powell and Henry Wolske Wed

At a lovely wedding Sunday afternoon Miss Beverly Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Powell of Palos Park became the bride of Mr. Henry Wolske, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wolske of Chicago. The vows were exchanged in a private ceremony in the Orland Park Methodist church with Rev. Henry Rempel officiating.

Preceding the ceremony Eloise Knight sang "Thou Brilliant Bird," "Always" and "Because" accompanied by Alma Rauch. Decorating the church were baskets of yellow chrysanthemums and vases of white carnations. Attendants in the bridal party were Mrs. John Horras of Mokena, cousin of the bride, as matron of honor; Mrs. Robert McKinney, sister of the bridegroom, bridesmaid; Gordon Powell, brother of the bride attended as best man and Robert McKinney was usher.

Miss Powell, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a suit the color of London fog, winter white hat and brown accessories. She wore diamond earrings which were a gift of the groom and a corsage of white orchids.

Mrs. Horras wore a suit of forest green with matching accessories and a corsage of white button chrysanthemums. Mrs. McKinney's suit and accessories were of brown, and she wore a corsage of yellow chrysanthemums. The bride's mother, Mrs. Gordon Powell chose a brown dress and Mrs. Wolske light green. Each wore a white corsage.

At six o'clock a wedding reception for thirty guests was held at Schrage's Inn after which the couple left for a wedding trip to southern California.

The bride is a recent graduate of Orland Park community high school and the bridegroom was graduated from Harrison high school in Chicago.

Balchowsky's Store Window Broken by High Wind Sunday

This vicinity was visited with a high wind Sunday, with the velocity reaching 51 miles per hour. There were many windows blown in and tree branches broken off.

In Frankfort the large plate glass window in the Harry Balchowsky store, on the dry goods side, was blown in and smashed in small bits. The window shade was drawn down and as the glass fell in it cut the shade in shreds. The many articles which were on display in the window were drenched by the rain which was also falling at that time.

Mrs. Edith Lambrecht saw the window crash as she was watching from the window in the Baumann home across the street. Mr. Breidert, Frankfort carpenter, was called and had it boarded up in a short time.

SECOND WEEK OF XMAS SEAL SALES AT 31% OF GOAL

Christmas seal purchases for the 42nd annual seal sale in Will county conducted by the Will County Tuberculosis association amounted to $7,081.32 according to an announcement today by Mr. Willard B. Curtis, county seal sale chairman.

The sale began November 22 when county residents received their sheets of seals in the mail, and will continue until Christmas. Returns from the seal sale will be used to support the association's 1949 program of tuberculosis prevention and control.

Returns so far represent 31 per cent of this year's goal of $22,500, said Mr. Curtis. The goal, he explained, is the minimum needed for the association's operating expenses during 1949. Health education and case-finding have been stressed the most in our past program. If the Christmas seal sale goal is reached your Tuberculosis association can help with a rehabilitation program for tuberculosis patients and those who have recovered.

A new club has been organized in Will county by the ex-T.B. patients, which is called the "Come-Back Launchers." These people know what rehabilitation in the sanatorium would have meant to them. They will do a great deal to help the Will County Tuberculosis association promote rehabilitation.

Returns to date have been from county residents who were prompt in answering their seal sale letters," said Mr. Curtis. "Although the seal sale continues until December 25, we are doubly grateful when the returns come in early, before the post office becomes heavily burdened with the customary late rush of Christmas mail."

Many letters have been received from contributors. One woman writes, "Dear Mr. Curtis: May God continue to bless you toward this wonderful work in restoring health to many when discovered in time."

Christmas Is Coming

Christmas is coming, Christmas is coming
The house is all aglow,
We bought a Holly wreath today
And a piece of mistletoe.

Christmas is coming, Christmas is coming
We have a Christmas tree
Where a silver angel with gossamer wings
Is dancing merrily.

There is whispering behind the kitchen door
And a giggling on the stair
There's a sudden scampering overhead
When nobody is there.

There are Christmas packages every where
Some tinkle with shiny bells
Some are tied with big red bows
Or trimmed with silver shells.

Papers rustle behind my back
But I can't see a thing
Except a scrap of tinsel lace
Or a bit of crimson string.

Christmas is coming, Christmas is coming
The wind is beginning to blow
I hope that Santa is ready to start
I hope that it will snow.

New Business Place in Frankfort

Frankfort has a new business place. It is called the B-Hive and is operated and owned by Clark Bennett, who is serving good sandwiches and all ice cream products. For his special offer and opening read his ad on another page in this issue.

As Mr. and Mrs. William Hartwig of Chicago Heights were returning to their home last Sunday evening, after having spent the day with the latter's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. John Martin, in Mokena they met with a serious auto accident.

It was about 9:30 o'clock and a short distance before the Hartwigs came to the Cicero avenue crossing on route 30. Mr. Hartwig, the driver, signaled for an approaching car to turn off his bright lights which were blinding, but the latter did not comply. At this place there was a stalled 1937 Ford sedan standing in the highway with no lights which suddenly loomed up before Mr. Hartwig, who at once turned to take the ditch so as not to hit the Ford, but it was too late and he rammed it.

Mrs. Hartwig was seated in the front seat and her head was jammed under the dash board of her car. The two little dogs, family pets, who always accompany the Hartwigs, were thrown out of the car. As soon as Mr. Hartwig could get to his wife from the other side, he tugged furiously to release her from the jammed position, which he succeeded in doing.

State police were soon on the scene, and the Hartwigs were removed to St. James hospital in Chicago Heights. Their daughter, Mrs. Peter Martz of Chicago Heights was notified and came at once. One of the little dogs could not be found, but the next morning on going to the scene of the accident, he was found cuddled at the same place.

The police at once made a search for the owner of the Ford and very soon two young boys were located nearby. The name of one of them was given as Frances Talmadge of 611 Blackhawk street, Joliet. He is 20 years old. They were both taken to the State Police station at Homewood where they are being held. It is understood they had neither auto license nor lights and it is thought that the car may have been stolen.

At the hospital it was found that Mrs. Hartwig has a badly bruised shoulder blade, severe cut on her head with minor cuts on her face, a cut on her elbow and a long deep gash on her left leg which required stitches. X-rays are being taken and it is not known yet if there are internal injuries.

Mr. Hartwig received a broken nose beside being badly shaken and bruised. His 1941 Chrysler is very badly damaged, to the extent of about $900. The Ford is not too badly damaged.

The Pet family was planning to move to Chicago in a day or so. Some furniture was saved, but the house and its contents burned to the ground.

It is not known what caused the fire and it is thought there was no insurance on it.

Circus at Chgo. to Open Dec. 25

Real beauty and unequalled daring is a rare combination, but it is found in Mlle. Lalage, the petite and intrepid solo aerial star from France, who will be one of the outstanding features in the 3d Annual International Circus which will open a nine day engagement at the Chicago Coliseum, Christmas night.

She is today recognized as one of the world's greatest aerialists, with an inherent grace that is pure poetry in motion. Her daring aloft, without a net below, will cause many a heart to throb and jump as she presents her sensational and breath-taking novelty that has as its tour de force, a combination of lightning agility and superb strength. Her strength, of course, is phenomenal, but it is her artistry, embodying grace and beauty that raises her far above the so-called standard aerialist.

It will hardly be necessary to caution you to watch out for her feature feats for you'll have a hard time taking your eyes off her at all. She's a lovely human swallow aloft, and she's an eye-ful, even when she is resting between feats.

Mlle. Lalage will be but one from among literally scores of renowned features. Other top-flight attractions will include the famed Joe Welch Wild Animal display; the George Hanneford Family of equestrians; the Les Kimrus Troupe, a high-in-the-air thriller; the Orantons, high-perch performers; the Tien Tsi Lin troupe of equilibrists-direct from China; Ruth Nelson, the daring rider of rearing and high-jumping horses and Coerene Deoro, the sensational aerial star. In all, there will be nearly 300 men and women arenic stars and performers in this year's star-studded program. Performances will be given twice daily starting at 2:15 in the afternoons and 8:15 each night.

Yes Sir, Insomnia's Contagious!

When Bud Swanson had trouble sleeping nights, and tried to get over it by turning up the radio full blast, he started an epidemic of insomnia all down the block!

Folks finally dropped a hint to Bud that he close the windows or turn the radio a little lower. Bud did—and that was the quickest cure for other folks' insomnia I've ever heard of!

Not that any of us object to the radio, or swing bands, or anything else that helps another person relax of an evening. (Myself, I like a glass of beer with a bit of cheese before I go to bed. I can't speak for you.)

From where I sit, good neighborliness means nothing more than simply respecting the other person's tastes and rights—without forcing your own tastes or opinions down his throat. And that goes for Bud's radio, my glass of beer, or whatever temperate pleasure you happen to enjoy.

LAW ON THE FARM

Crop Dusting and Spraying. The discovery of effective weed-killing chemicals and the use of aircraft for spreading and dusting both weed-killers and insecticidal dusts and sprays have focused attention on the liability a farmer may incur if these dusts and sprays injure the crops or livestock of adjoining owners.

There is a well-established principle of law that when a person makes use of a substance which is known to have dangerous qualities, he does so—to some degree at least—at his own risk. It is quite probable that if an Illinois farmer, in applying dust or spray, does actual harm to his neighbor's crops or livestock, he can be made to pay reasonable damages, even though he may not have been negligent in mixing or applying the material. But if the farmer contracts with an aircraft owner to apply the spray or dust, it might appear that the aircraft owner would be the one liable, since in most instances at least he would be what is termed in law an "independent contractor."

However, there is a recent Texas court decision holding the farm operator, liable, on the ground that even though the dusting was done by an independent contractor, the farm operator knew that damage to surrounding property might result. There is much reason in the Texas decision, and it might very well be followed by the courts in other states.

As a result of large numbers of complaints, particularly from cotton farmers, the administrator of the Federal Civil Aeronautics Authority in June 1948 prohibited the spreading of 2,4-D weed killer dust from aircraft. Thus far most complaints have arisen from dusting; sprays do not drift as much or as far.

Certainly the use of these chemicals and the employment of aircraft to spread them should not be interfered with except insofar as there seems to be a public necessity to do so. A farmer may reduce the risk he takes by exercising a high degree of care in preparing and applying these chemicals by insisting that any independent agent employed by him do likewise and if possible by securing waivers of liability from his neighbors. The last point may very well be a mutual proposition if his neighbors also wish to spray or dust. Also, his contract with the aircraft owner should include a statement concerning recourse against the owner if damage results from negligence in the use of the aircraft. He may very well have such recourse even though there is no formal contract.

Improper adjustment or high-speed operation of the combine may waste three to five bushels of soybeans an acre.

MODEL AUTO DESIGN CONTEST HAS BIG AWARDS

The 1949 model car competition of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild is offering $65,000 in cash awards and university scholarships to boys through out the nation who can design the best model automobiles. It was announced today by T. P. Archer, vice president of General Motors and Guild president.

A new booklet on model car design and construction, the only textbook of its kind for youths wishing to learn about automobile design, will be sent to each from the General Motors Styling Section, Fisher Body Division engineers and the Technical Staff of the Craftsman's Guild at Detroit, Mich.

The new design manual shows how to sketch a model car, including some of the practical limitations that face the professionals. It also illustrates, step by step, how to build the model either by casting it in plaster of Paris or by carving it from a wood block.

The awards for the best models entered in the Guild competition again include eight university scholarships for the national winners of the Junior (12 through 15 years old) and Senior (16 through 19) Divisions of the competition. In each age group the awards will be: 1st—$4,000 scholarship; 2nd—$3,000; 3rd—$2,000; 4th—$1,000.

There will be 14 awards in each state and the District of Columbia, seven in each age division as follows: 1st—$150 cash; 2nd—$100; 3rd—$50; and four Honorable Mention awards of Model Builder's Tool Chests. For judging purposes, the states and District of Columbia will be grouped into 20 regions, each of which will send a junior and senior division winner expense-free to the national Guild convention in Detroit next August.

Deadline for finishing model cars is midnight, July 1, 1949. Guild representatives now are visiting schools throughout the country, presenting the Guild program to student assemblies and taking enrollments.

Refueling hazards, falls from the machine, overturning of the tractor, and unguarded power drives are the causes of most tractor accidents.

Commercial Sprayers To Meet Jan. 12-14

Dates for the first Commercial Spray Operators' short course ever held in Illinois have been set for January 12-14, 1949 at the University of Illinois Urbana.

There is no registration fee, and the conference is open to both ground and airplane operators, explains H. B. Petty, extension entomologist and program chairman.

The first day is set aside for ground operators, the second day for both ground and airplane men, and the third day for airplane men only.

Joint sponsors of the meeting are the College of Agriculture, the Institute of Aeronautics, and the State Natural History Survey.

"Custom sprayers and dusters, although fairly new in Illinois, are pretty important in controlling insect pests, weeds and plant diseases," Petty said. "We'll be reporting our latest information on these matters at the meeting."

Topics on the tentative program include problems in spraying and dusting weeds, orchards, livestock, trees; lawns and shrubs, plus many questions on proper equipment.

The aerodynamics of dusting crops, spraying grasshoppers with chlordane, and dusting corn borers with DDT are some topics of interest to airplane operators. For ground sprayers, use of 2,4-D for weed control, an all-purpose orchard spray, fly control with DDT, and best types of nozzles, pumps, and gauges will be discussed.

Questions can be turned in during the conference, Petty reported, and will be answered informally by a group of various specialists.

Researcher Advances New Crime Theory: A Lack of Ozone!

It may be the absence of "aran" in the atmosphere which prompts a criminal to murder, according to a theory advanced in the current issue, just published, of the Northwestern Journal of Criminal Law and Criminology.

The aran hypothesis, expressed by Dr. Manfred Curry in an article in the Journal, is open to some skepticism, but is based upon certain plausible assumptions and facts, the editors state. Writing on "The Relationship of Weather Conditions, Facial Characteristics and Crime," Dr. Curry is a researcher in the fields of aerodynamics and bioclimatics.

He explains his assumption this way. In his studies, he has learned that the sensation experienced in a closed telephone booth—the feeling of lack of air, nervousness, restlessness, increased body temperature, perspiration and sometimes even fear—is caused by a lack of ozone or an ozone-like substance. Further research led the investigator to believe that it is a specific ozone-like substance, which he named aran, the lack of which causes the sensation described.

He states also that the amount of aran depends upon the direction of the wind. South winds are accompanied by low, and north winds by high, concentrations of the substance, he says. People of one particular type, who are unhappy when south winds blow and the aran supply is skimpy, are least likely to be criminals, especially murderers, he believes. He bases his hypothesis on a study of many thousands of individuals.

People generally are of two constitutional types, which he designates as "W" and "C". W persons not only react unfavorably in south winds and low aran concentrations, but usually are ruddy-faced, sleep well only in a cold bedroom, dream a great deal, like cold baths, dress lightly, have a slower adaptation to the dark and like rich, carbohydrate foods.

The C type, on the other hand, likes a mild climate, rough weather does not agree with him, he is pale, dresses warmly, is a meat-eater and is easily irritated and quarrelsome.

Affectionate and agreeable, the W type is generally well-liked, altruistic, and a person with strong emotions. He is cheerful and optimistic, and experiences everything intensely. Busy and vital, he is nevertheless quickly exhausted. Sometimes he is talkative, overwhelming and confidential. Because of his yielding and conciliatory nature, he is seldom involved in quarrels.

The C type is capable, ambitious, but has an inflexible will. He is uncompromising, and things are either "black or white." Unforgiving and capable of intense hatred he recognizes only friend and foe. Giving the impression of calm and self-control, he "boils" in secret, and finally, usually in an unguarded moment, bursts out explosively with fits of rage. He's more likely to commit murder than is his W counterpart.

Physical characteristics of the two types also are described by Dr. Curry. He writes that the C's have piercing glances, with eyes deeply set and small. Their noses are, in general, narrow and long, and their mouths slit-like. The piercing eyes he believes, are characteristic of criminals, too. "Murderers never have large, dreamy eyes," he declares. In contrast to murderers are the suicides, who are "almost without exception W types."

Dr. Curry believes that suicides are most likely to occur when the aran values are falling or low, whereas murders which are not premeditated occur under the influence of high concentrations. "The findings of this investigation may play an important role in forensic medicine in distinguishing between murder and suicide," he concludes.

A native Bostonian, Dr. Curry received the doctor of medicine degree from Munich University. The results of his medical research in the field of bioclimatics are reported in his book, "Bioklimatik," published in Germany in 1946.

Hog producers have lengthened the feeding hours of hogs by placing lights in the houses. As a result, the daily rate of gain has increased. The use of lights has also permitted more hogs to be fed with the same equipment.

Letters in the Bible

Lesson for December 12, 1948

A LETTER in the mail! Those are exciting words. It was so when the Babylonians chipped open their dried clay envelopes, it is so when we rip the end off our paper envelopes, it was so when the marooned and homesick Timothy broke the seal on the papyrus notes that his old friend and teacher Paul sent him. Most letters reach the wastebasket, and we know that some of Paul's did. But fortunately his friends thought enough of about a dozen of his letters to save them and copy them and file them with some others and pass them around. And so we got more than a third of our New Testament, and perhaps a good deal more than a third of our theology.

Yesterday in television THESE letters that have come down to us from so long ago are not only keenly interesting, they are immensely valuable. An honest informal letter is like an open window. We see into the writer's mind and life, we see the life of his times. Any historian feels lucky when he lights on a packet of old letters. Here is yesterday in television.

The letters of the New Testament, especially Paul's, are not propaganda literature. Paul was not writing for publication or for posterity. He would be bothered by a problem; he would think and pray about it, and then he would sit down and write about it.

However trivial the problem might seem, such as a local church quarrel, Paul never wrote trivially about it. He would pour out his mind on papyrus, usually dictating his letters to a secretary and sometimes so fast that the secretary obviously had a hard time keeping up.

If you want to know how an Apostle's mind worked, here it is. If you want to know how an inspired religious genius, one of the great of all time, planned and grieved and hoped and rejoiced, read these letters. Further, these letters televise for us the early Christian church. This is not a view of the church on parade, this is a glimpse of the church as it was "on the hoof," struggling, quarreling, ignorant, scarce one step removed from raw heathenism, and yet with the root of Christian faith in its heart, the seed of the great church that has grown up through the centuries.

Friend to Friend

THE letters in the New Testament are of various kinds. The letter to the Philippians from Paul was written, from prison, to some of his best friends. Recently they had sent him not only money but a man named Epaphroditus to stay with Paul and help him, Paul being in constant bad health. But Epaphroditus himself had fallen ill, and when he grew better he was still homesick.

Paul, generous as always, decided to send his sick friend home to convalesce, and by his hand sent the letter which the Philippians church loved, saved and copied, so that it eventually made its way into the New Testament collection.

There is some high theology in the letter; but there is also some warm human friendship, and some of the best advice Paul ever gave. It is in this letter we discover Paul's secret of happiness. I have learned (he wrote) in whatsoever state I am, therein to be content. (See chapter 4.)

When you read those paragraphs, simply glowing with happiness, remember they were written by a sick man, in jail, facing a serious charge on his forthcoming trial. Paul had actually discovered a joy which is trouble-proof.

Father to Sons

PAUL knew he would not live forever on this planet and could not live everywhere. So he spent much effort training helpers and successors. Some of these disappointed him sorely; but he was never disappointed in Timothy.

His letters to Timothy are personal, but they are more than that. They are advice from an older minister to a younger one, from a veteran missionary to a fresh recruit. In I John we have another kind of letter, from an old, perhaps retired minister to a congregation he knows and loves. Again in I John the reader gets the impression of reading a family letter from father to sons and daughters.

Dr. Walter A. Maier Speaks on Lutheran Hour Program

The only effective agency to Counteract atomic annihilation is the Gospel of Jesus Christ, Dr. Walter A. Maier professor on leave at Concordia Theological Seminary, declared Sunday in an international broadcast of the Lutheran Hour. Reviewing scientific investigation of the atom bomb's scope and effect, the radio speaker gave this summary:

1. There is no known shelter and refuge from the reach of radioactive bombardment. The latest authoritative volume on fissure-fueled bombs bears the significant title, "No Place to Hide." Even desert caves can be contaminated.
2. There is no known adequate defense against atomic weapons.
3. There is no known cure for infection from radioactive material. Full contact means death.
4. There is no known check whereby the effect of the A-Bomb can be limited to the small area into which it falls. In the waters around Bikini, after the submarine atom-explosion, live fish were found to be radioactive. Many of these, in turn, were devoured by larger fish which, becoming contaminated, carried the menace to distant shores. Similarly, clouds of atomic particles, capable of destroying many lives, are blown far from fissure explosions.
5. No scientific means now exist to cut off the deadly effect of the A-Bomb immediately after its explosion. The peril of radioactive infection lingers on for years, perhaps even centuries. It will be a long time before Bikini natives are allowed to return to their native homes, because fatal atomic effects remain there for a long time. Even after traces of radioactivity disappear, a far worse menace to life, free plutonium, may persist for centuries.
6. There is no prospect of frustrating the creation of atomic bombs far more powerful than the present. Today's bombs are much more deadly than those dropped on the Japanese cities three years ago. Tomorrow's will far exceed anything of which we now know.
7. No single nation can perpetually keep the atomic secret. President Truman's Air Policy Commission reports that, by 1952 each of the World Powers will possess a large stock of highly developed A-Bombs.

8. No reasonable hope survives that the nations will promise to discard the atomic bomb, outlaw its use, destroy its factories, and permit a thorough checkup on these pledges.
9. The oft-repeated proposal, "We must defeat the Russians before they get the atomic bomb!" is unwarranted, militaristic, and will only produce heavier complications.
10. We must penitently pray God for divine help in restricting this worldwide menace. We must vastly increase the missionary forces which preach Christ's Gospel, the only means for turning men's hearts from hatred to love, from the mania of massacre to the desire to help mankind.

Four Win Prizes In Suggestion Contest

Four employees of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois were awarded prizes totaling $475 for the best 1948 suggestions submitted under the company's suggestion system at a conference of the utility's officials held today at the Palmer House, Chicago.

Britton I. Budd, president, presented a top award of $200 to Robert H. Woolsey, Joliet, of the company's southern division technical operating department for suggesting a new device to be used in locating faults in underground electric cable.

Second prize winner was Henry Link Evanston, who was awarded $150 for designing a special tool which is being used in connection with the utility's present extensive gas conversion operation.

John L. Hershman, Waukegan, won third place and was awarded $100 for his suggestion about mechanical changes resulting in more efficient operation of the boilers at the Waukegan station.

Laurence D. Meyer of the utility's electric operating department in Kankakee was given the $25 award for submitting the largest number of accepted suggestions during the year.

The year-end prizes were in addition to cash awards totaling $300 given to the winners at the time their suggestions were originally accepted.

The utility's suggestion system, founded in 1911 and one of the oldest in the country, attracted approximately 1,300 suggestions from employees during 1948. Of this number, 458 were accepted and cash awards approximated $4,900.

According to the World Book Encyclopedia, Indiana's nickname "Hoosier" is believed to come from the old Saxon word, "Hoozer," which means "hill dweller."

The average investment per farm in Illinois is $18,000.

Washington Digest

No Future to Presidency, Pension Plan Is Proposed

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—Harry Truman, President, is going to be able to consider one measure which probably will come up in the approaching congress with more objectivity than some of his friends thought would be possible. It offers an answer to the question: what to do with ex-Presidents.

The idea is not entirely altruistic, although the United States in the past has shown rather shabby gratitude in tossing aside, without further concern, the man who has served as the republic's head.

Many, if not most of our former chief executives might provide counsel and advice based on their experience which could be most valuable. Herbert Hoover is an example. At present, he is rendering important service as head of the commission appointed by President Truman which has just drawn up the plan for the re-organization of government departments which congress will consider at its next session.

Hoover has served in many other useful public capacities since he left the White House. He can afford to. Indeed, he not only spent considerable sums out of his private funds on secretarial and research assistance when he was secretary of commerce, and later in the White House, but he also voluntarily turned back a part of his salary as President in 1932 when, under the Economy act, the salaries of all government employees were cut.

Franklin Roosevelt also turned back part of his salary under that same act, and later, in 1943, when he was advocating a $25,000 ceiling on all salaries, FDR again voluntarily refunded to the treasury a portion of his own.

But not all presidents are born with, or acquire, silver spoons. Few could afford the luxury of working for nothing and so, when they leave office most have to look around for a job.

Fortunately, former President William Howard Taft, in the years before he was called back to Uncle Sam's workbench as chief justice of the supreme court, possessed enough of the world's goods so that he could afford to render at least semi-public services teaching in the Harvard law school — a position which a man of slenderer means might have had to turn down in favor of a higher salary from some purely private enterprise. His son, Sen. Robert Taft, mentioned this recently when he suggested that former presidents should receive a substantial pension, "perhaps $25,000 a year."

Ex-presidents also should have the privileges of the senate floor, Taft believes, with the right to speak, but not to vote, on pending legislation. In so honoring them the nation would benefit.

Coolidge might or might not have welcomed an opportunity to take on some governmental responsibility after his presidential term expired. As it was, he accepted a lucrative position with an insurance company and continued his private law practice as well until he died.

Most presidents leave the White House poorer than when they went in. Franklin Roosevelt wrote a $2,000 personal check every month to meet White House expenses, and other recent residents have estimated that they had to go down into the old sock to the tune of $25,000 a year over and above what the government gives them, to meet the cost of living in the executive mansion.

Why Not Provide For Ex-Presidents?

When the pollsters were writing off Harry Truman as merely an "ex," come January 20, the proponents of the idea of providing for former chiefs of the United States were pointing out that Harry Truman does not have the private means that Franklin Roosevelt or Herbert Hoover had.

There was some talk that Mr. Truman might run for representative of his home state as President John Quincy Adams did. Adams served 17 years in the house and, if anything, increased his prestige by doing so. But Mr. Truman's fellow Missourian, Rep. C. Jasper Bell, had another idea in July of 1946 during the last session of the 79th congress.

He proposed that the house and senate enact a bill to provide an annual pension of $50,000 for men who had served as President of the United States. Bell pointed out that army officers, congressmen, senators, cabinet members, heads of government departments, and even the most humble of federal workers are provided with retirement pay and he couldn't see why the head of the federal government should be discriminated against in this regard. He felt that in the long run, retirement pay for a chief executive would be a step toward better government.

A Missouri newspaper editor, shortly after Bell's resolution was first introduced, claimed in an editorial that the pension idea was alright, but that the amount of his pension, $50,000, seemed a little high. He, like Mr. Taft, felt that $25,000 a year would be a more equitable sum. Representative Bell's reply to that objection was that if congress did fix the figure at $50,000, taxes would shortly whittle it down to $25,000 anyway.

Mr. Truman may have been touched with what was intended as solicitude on the part of his fellow-show-me's but he did not feel the matter was of immediate concern.

So far as the memory of this man runneth not to the contrary, there have never, in recent years, been more than two co-surviving ex-presidents.

Until the death of President Coolidge in 1933, he and Herbert Hoover were co-survivors. Coolidge had earlier shared that position with Chief Justice Taft until the latter's death in 1930. Taft, who lived to be 73 years old, co-survived and outlived Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson.

"No office in the world today," wrote the English professor of economics and political science, Harold J. Laski, "carries with it greater responsibilities than the presidency of the United States."

No one who has made even a superficial study of the duties of the president fails to realize how hard a job it is, hard in the sense of long hours, nervous strain, and physical effort. Since the death of Woodrow Wilson, brought on by his herculean efforts during and after World War I, much study has been given to the problem of lessening the burden of the chief executive.

Herbert Hoover has spoken of the "vast and intolerable labor" of the man who sits in the White House for four years or more. Merriman Smith in his book: "A President Is Many Men," commenting on the "complicated and burdensome" quality of the task, makes this pithy observation: "And his job is one with no future."

The "ex" has a value and the problem of finding it can be solved easily by congress without the knowledge of algebra.

U. S. Population Growth Studied

What size population do we want for the United States? Or does it make any difference?

The question is important enough to merit a continuing study by the U. S. commerce department, and the conclusions which have been reached so far appear to have an important bearing on the problem of securing world peace.

"Whatever the future of world organization, the relative population of the various nations will be a matter of profound importance in determining the shape of things to come."

That statement was made in a report by the national committee on immigration policy, headed by Earl G. Harrison, which is plumping for immigration increases in this country.

In 1923 the commerce department estimated that a population of at least 200 million and very probably 300 million could be supported in the U. S. without lowering the habitually high American standard of living.

The Harrison group pointed out that "even if we accept the lowest figure, it is still 35 millions more than the peak which the American population will reach in 1990."

These are some of the assertions the group made in a special report on immigration and population policy.

Population of the U. S. should be 159 million in 1970. That of Russia should be 251 million—an extremely sharp increase. Italy, Spain and countries back of the iron curtain also are expected to show population gains.

For other nations: Population of Germany, Denmark and Finland will remain approximately stationary, while the population of England, France, Sweden and Switzerland is expected to hit a downward trend.

By the end of this century—and that's only about 51 years away, remember—the population of the United States will be proportionately smaller in relation to Russia, China and India than it is now.

It means that the great, teeming population masses of Asia are moving forward numerically with a force and inexorability that is bound to exert a profound effect on "the shape of things to come."

Two Illinois Home Advisers to be Honored

Two Illinois home advisers with high records of service and achievement—Mrs. Ena K. Chesney, Stephenson county, and Mrs. Helen Volk, Lake county—have been chosen to receive national honors by the National Home Demonstration Agents' Association.

They will be given certificates in recognition of their service at the meeting of the association in Chicago Wednesday, December 1. At the same time, 43 home demonstration agents from 29 other states will be honored. The association has been presenting these honors for the past 5 years, and Illinois has been represented among those honored each year.

The two Illinois women being honored have served their counties over long periods of years. Mrs. Chesney has worked in Stephenson county for 15 years. Mrs. Volk in Lake county for almost 12 years.

Mrs. Chesney has helped carry home economics extension work into all parts of her county during her tenure. There are now 23 adult groups with 510 members, 21 4-H groups with 259 members, and an older youth group with 110 members. Mrs. Chesney received her B. S. in home economics from the University of Illinois.

In Lake county, Mrs. Volk has been active in giving home economics extension information to many rural people. She works with 687 members of 23 adult groups, 382 4-H's, and 5 older youths. Mrs. Volk is also a graduate of the University of Illinois with a B. S. in home economics.

Home economics extension work is now being carried on in all counties in Illinois. There are home bureau units in 99 of the 102 counties. These units make up the Illinois Home Bureau Federation which includes approximately 50,000 women.

Among Illinois home advisers who have been honored in previous years are Miss Clara Brian, former McLean county home adviser; Mrs. Esther Thor Campaign county; Mrs. Besie Wilson, Coles county; Mrs. Edith Huffman, Fulton county; Mrs. Clara Sweeney, McHenry county; and Miss Deborah Soliday, Macoupin county.

Even in the troubled days before the Revolutionary War, Ben Franklin didn't lose his sense of humor reports the World Book Encyclopedia. When orators were delivering long and brilliant speeches in favor of unity among the colonies, Franklin simply said, "Gentlemen, we must all hang together, or, assuredly we shall all hang separately."

If blood tests show that brucellosis is present in the hog herd, the farmer should follow special precautions for his own protection at fall butchering time.

Joliet Man Awarded Life Saving Medal

Joseph E. Einhaus, 517 Cowles avenue, Joliet, an electric sales department employee of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, was awarded the Britton I. Budd Medal for the Saving of Human Life at a conference of company officials held Tuesday (November 30) at the Palmer House, Chicago.

The award was presented by the medal's donor, Britton I. Budd, president of the utility, in recognition of Einhaus' quick action February 4, 1948 in saving the lives of Arthur Phelan, a Ransom farmer, and his two sons who had been accidentally overcome by fumes from the latter's car as he drove the boys to school.

Einhaus was on his way to Streator when he passed the Phelan car that had careened into a ditch and stopped against a snowbank. He noticed a man at the wheel evidently in a dazed condition. Acting promptly, Einhaus stopped his car and found the man and two boys unconscious. He placed the trio in his car and rushed them to the Streator hospital where they were revived and made complete recovery. Hospital authorities estimated that if they had remained in the car much longer, it would have been impossible to revive them.

Einhaus' award brings to 96 the total number of persons receiving the medal since it was established by the utility company president 22 years ago to stimulate interest in safety and preparedness and to give recognition or outstanding examples of prompt action and presence of mind in coping with physical emergencies.

Illinois operates under the National Poultry Improvement Plan.

Atom Bomb Blast 50 Miles Away Makes Cattle Turn White

An atomic bombing on test grounds in New Mexico caused the hair of cattle 50 miles away to turn white, Army veterinarians have just disclosed.

The cloud created by the bomb burst drifted more than 50 miles from the point of explosion, and deadly radioactive particles settled out of the moving cloud onto a pasturing herd of Hereford cattle.

Such radioactive material is capable of producing many strange, if not crippling or fatal changes in the body. In this case, the effect was to turn the hair white. Exposure of the cattle was not anticipated in planning the bomb test.

Colonel W. O. Kester and Major E. B. Miller of the Army Veterinary corps, writing in the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association, said that the atom bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki during the war did not, as far as anyone knows, play any such longrange pranks, because the bombs exploded high above the ground and the lethal radioactive rays were dispersed before they had a chance to travel a great distance. In New Mexico, however, the test bomb was detonated close to the ground, with the result that it kicked up a lot of desert dust and made the dust radioactive. Then, the dust-containing bomb cloud moved over a wide area and spread contamination.

The "cattle in white" incident was pointed up by the writers to impress the need for close supervision of animals and foods in the event of an atomic attack. The veterinary profession already has assembled considerable information about atomic effects on livestock and pets, and about the treatment of atom bomb-produced illnesses, but much still must be learned along this line, the Army spokesmen declared.

Be Careful at Xmas To Be Happy

Fun, surprises and excitement all play major roles in the Christmas holidays, one season in the year that everyone joins hands in mutual understanding to inspire happiness. Good will for all—and peace on earth. In extending his greetings to the citizens of Illinois, the Educational Committee of the Illinois State Medical Society introduces a warning note in its Health Talk. Avoid carelessness, says the Committee, to keep your holidays happy.

Illness and accidents will mark the coming festive season unless common sense is applied. A short circuit in the wiring of the Christmas tree or a small boy's electric train may result in tragedy. Fire from it may destroy a home or take life. Trimming a tree from an insecure ladder or chair may cause a fall that will bring pain, a crippling condition and even death.

Hurrying about in crowded stores, he doing of one more thing, such as shopping, baking or wrapping of packages may end in a fatigue so acute that the strain of "keeping up" will result in sickness instead. With the lowering of the body's resistance, there is greater susceptibility to the diseases prevalent during the season, such as colds, pneumonia and influenza.

"Frayed" nerves will do more to spoil the holiday spirit than enlighten it. With a parent sick or "grumpy", the muted atmosphere of the home is anything but happy. To this type of fatigue may be attributed the unkind retort, spoken quickly and in temper with no deliberate intent to hurt, but nevertheless leaving a mark of sadness.

Planning a happy holiday should include careful attention to details, which, if avoided, will keep the season free from worry, strife or accident. Toys intended for entertainment can bring disaster, particularly if left on stairs or in other places where they can cause a fall. Some fun-makers, colorful and brilliant, have brought tragedy because of their explosive nature when used carelessly.

Toys purchased for small children should be chosen wisely. Toys with points, such as darts, are not suitable for the young child. Beads and buttons used for eyes and noses on certain types of dolls, are to be avoided. There should be no toy or part of a toy that comes apart easily, obviating the chances of swallowing or inhaling, nor sharp enough to do injury.

The driver of an automobile should not drink. The convivial spirit, inspired by the festivities of the Christmas and New Year holidays, is responsible for many deaths in accidents. Driving a car on an icy street or heavily trafficked lane requires mental and physical alertness. A collision can end in death or permanent crippling.

Overeating should be avoided, as should excessively rich and spicy foods. The misery of an "upset" stomach will do little to keep the home bright and happy.

Keep shields over revolving power take-off shafts. Many accidents occur at these places on machines when they are left unprotected.

Engineer Needs Imagination, N. U. Designer Declares

Imagination is as important in the field of engineering design as is the knowledge of science, a Northwestern Technological Institute professor said.

Dr. John F. Calvert, professor of electrical engineering and chairman of the department, attacked "the common feeling that intuition is emotion."

Sunday afternoon with a miscellaneous shower given in the Frankfort village hall by Mrs. Linus Rehberg of Monee, Mrs. Harold Ulrich of Green Garden, and Mrs. Clarence Klepper of Frankfort. The hall was beautifully decorated in the bride's chosen colors green, rose and gold. A sprinkling can was suspended over the chair in which the celebrant sat all decorated in the chosen colors, which added much to the beauty of the occasion.

Crash bunco was the afternoon's diversion with prizes being awarded to Mrs. William White of Joliet, cousin of the bride to be; Mrs. Joe Lehnert and Mrs. Peter Kokal. Duplicate prizes were given to Miss Hossbach.

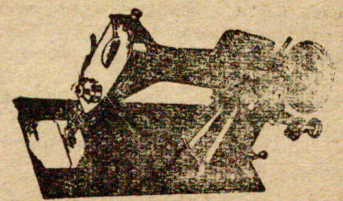

There were 35 guests present and many beautiful gifts were received. A two-course luncheon was enjoyed at the close of the shower.

al, not intellectual or scientific, and therefore not to be desired." Some inventors, he stated, have felt that they must become attuned to nature so that they may feel or envision the final work as a painter, a musician or sculptor senses the form of his yet unfinished art.

There is, however, a vast difference between the "crackpot inventor" and the designer of successful new devices. The Northwestern University engineer pointed out each must have developed that knack of arranging in the imagination the new and novel, but the difference is measured not by the degree of newness found in the ideas, but by the judgment with which they are weighed. The successful designer asks himself these questions: Why is this job worth doing? Is the magnitude of the improvement likely to make it unquestionably accepted, or is it apt to be only of a marginal sort? What will it require in men's time, money and materials? Is there something else which should take precedence. Yet the necessary appraisals must not dampen the ardor for achievement.

An engineering design should arise from some human need, said the professor. He suggested several areas of needs, which he considered basic and perennial: preservation of life and health; savings in economic values as defined by money, man hours and materials (which account for a vast number of engineering developments); greater opportunities for individual freedom of action through travel, communication, etc.; comforts in terms of the human senses; amusements and escapes from the daily requirements of life; release from drudgery; and release from worry, anxiety and fear.

Boys' Pets Lead to Goat Dairy Business

If you have two growing boys in your family who want to raise pets, and the neighbors in the city object to a menagerie in your back yard, the solution is to move to the country.

That's the way Mrs. E. W. Tetzlaff, formerly of Milwaukee, solved the problem when her youngsters began clamoring for pets. She and her husband and two children moved out to a 10-acre place away from the city and started raising and milking Saanen goats.

Today the goats are still pets, but are also the basis of a thriving little farm industry operated by the Tetzlaffs, who sell all the goat milk they can produce at 35 cents a quart. The goats give from 4½ to 6 quarts a day for some time after freshening and have a long lactation period.
